

If you have concluded your analysis and it shows you have many issues to resolve within your space then taking the steps in parts two and three will be a long process. You might have 10, 20, 30 solutions to apply the ecosystem traits to, which will result in many more resources for you to find, but you need to allow yourselves time and bare in mind you are working as a team, its possible to focus on one or two (or a lot more?) of these issues and give them priority. This will depend on how many people are working through this design process and how much time you can each dedicate to it.

